The following offices were consulted on the scheme of the Defence Deptt and their views are as follows.

The Manpower Deptt is to be trained in consultation with Mysore State was approximately 30 and the Provincial Govts. Govt should consider the possibility of their accepting a larger no for training having regard to the facilities available in the State.

(1) Civil after Occupational Institutes - Deptt feels that the training contemplated may be given in the Rural Welfare Centre Dodballapur for a period of 3 months and supplemented by training for another period of 3 months in the Occupational Institute in part time classes.

(2) Dep[uty] Industries - This Deptt is less general. Deptt feels training in the various Industrial Schools. Cottage Industrial Centres. Sandal Oil Deptt also has Occupational Institutes. States that proper facilities can be made available in the shape of instructors. Tools etc about 200 to 300 men may be trained in a period of six months.

(3) Dep[uty] P. H. States that no action is expected of the Deptt since the Defence Deptt letter has stated that the military authorities themselves can give the required training.

Vocational Training for the Army.

My dear 21/10/43 Mr. Vedavyasacharya.

I am desired to enclose a copy of a demi-official letter from the Government of India, Defence Department, to Provincial Governments, No.F.3(4)-MPA/43, dated the 8th September 1943, and to say that it has been suggested that certain Indian States might also be able to train a certain number of men in one or more of the subjects mentioned in the letter. The number of men suggested to be trained in institutions in the Mysore State is approximately 30.

2. The Hon'ble the Resident would be grateful if the Government of Mysore would kindly consider the possibilities and usefulness of the ideas contained in the letter and communicate their views to him as soon as convenient.

3. The number suggested above is merely a tentative figure and the Hon'ble the Resident would be glad if the Government of Mysore would kindly consider the possibility of their accepting a larger number for training, having regard to the facilities available in the State.

Yours sincerely
A.R. Bowie

D.O.No.F.3(4)-MPA/43.
Defence Department.
New Delhi, the 8th September 1943.

My dear ...

I am desired to address you on the subject of vocational training for the Army. As you are probably aware the Directorate of Welfare and Amenities at General Headquarters is concerned on one side of its activities with the task of making the soldier a more useful and efficient citizen when he returns to civil life. With this end in view the men are given regular courses of instruction as a part of their training in the subjects which are likely to be of value to them when they return to their villages. The idea is not merely to teach them a little elementary knowledge on subjects such as co-operation, anti-malarial measures, better husbandry, better farming, and so on, but also to produce the will for better living generally in the whole mass of them.

2. As some 75 or 80 per cent of the serving soldiers are agriculturists the main stress is naturally upon rural rather than urban life, and already very considerable progress has been made and there are undoubted signs of general appreciation by men themselves and interest in what is taught. Already some further development from mere discussion or lecture has taken place and in each training centre of the Army (and there are now 110 of these) we hope to establish a rural reconstruction exhibition with a demonstration garden under a trained agriculturist. The exhibition will consist of models of good and bad villages etc., samples and pictures of crops and seeds, common pests and other things, the products of village industry, etc. One of these is actually being started at Lahore with the assistance of the Punjab Government, and in the course of the next few months it is hoped to start one at every training centre.

3. We cannot expect to do more than this during the continuance of hostilities as the main task of the army authorities, including the Directorate of Welfare and Amenities, is to improve the quality of the men as soldiers rather than as civilians. When however the armistice is signed there may be a considerable period between the actual cessation of fighting and demobilisation. This period might possibly be as long as a year. After the last war no use was made of this period and the men sat about in their lines or carried on routine military duties until discharge. This time it is not proposed to waste this period and vocational training instead of being a very subsidiary occupation for a very small part of the soldier's time will become one of his main occupations. It will, I think, be admitted that it will be greatly to the benefit of the Province to receive back men who are prepared, and in some degree at least trained, to take full advantage of every opportunity which schemes of development and reconstruction may give them. For all that we know the time of the armistice may still be far away, but even so we feel that it is not too early to begin the preparation of a complete and detailed plan. It would be for the Provincial Governments to say what they want done and what courses of instruction will best fit in with the needs of Provinces, and their post-war plans. It seems however that there are certain subjects which are more or less applicable to all. These subjects are to some extent being taught now, but it is desirable that the mere smattering which can be attained under war-time conditions should be developed into a reasonable degree of knowledge. These subjects are:-

A. COMPULSORY (for all soldiers)

Health, hygiene and sanitation - personal, domestic and communal.

The subdivisions of this course will include:

(i) The construction of domestic necessities and amenities such as ventilators, chimneys, hay boxes, improved cooking ranges etc.

(ii) The use of cement concrete for village needs, e.g. rat-proof grain bins, beems, roofing, cattle troughs, pipes, tiles, etc.

(iii) The improvement of drinking water supplies.

(iv) The disposal of waste water to drains, septic tanks, sumps, tree and vegetable plots, etc.

(v) Nutrition.

(vi) First aid. (vii) Malaria control.

Little help from the Provincial Governments in these subjects will be required as much instruction can be provided by military officers of medical, sappers and miners and other technical corps.

B. Principles and practice of co-operation including several common types of societies.

C. For soldiers who own or are tenants of land, better methods of farming such as:-

(i) Use and adjustment of improved implements.
(ii) Better seeds and new crops.
(iii) Pests and diseases.
(iv) Manure pits, composting, green manure, chemical manure.
(v) Animal husbandry.
(vi) Economic use of water and dry farming.
(vii) The elements of the practice of growing vegetables, fruit and flowers.
(viii) Consolidation of holdings.

D. For men from areas subject to erosion only - the conservation and reclamation of arable and pasture lands.

4. In addition to these subjects which appear to us to be of a general value more or less irrespective of geography, the following list of subjects has been drawn up which would be both voluntary and specialised to soldiers who either have expressed a particular interest in them and who have opportunities for putting their lessons into practice, or whose military training has been of such nature as to make them specially adapted for them :-

(1) Fruit and vegetable growing, canning, bottling, making pickles, chutneys, squashes, etc.
(2) Dairying. (3) Poultry keeping. (4) Bee keeping.
(5) Silk worm rearing. (6) Lac production.
(7) The installing, adjusting, servicing and, where possible, making of agricultural machinery and implements.
(8) The installing and servicing of oil engines and tube wells.
(9) The making of improved types of country carts with rubber tyres and the making of wheels and axles for rubber tyres to be fitted to existing country carts.
(10) Rural industries in wood, iron, leather, wool, cotton, fibre, silk, osiers, grass, etc.
(11) The organising of games, clubs, boy scouts, dramas, etc.
(12) The repairing of bicycles.
(13) The servicing and repairing of radio sets.

5. It is realised that this list is purely tentative and by no means exhaustive, and whether some or all of the items would be suitable must depend upon the Province, or even the district, from which the soldier comes, and also upon post-war plans elaborated by the Provinces. More items could undoubtedly be added.

6. The question is - what arrangements for training the men should be made in order to make the best possible use of provincial and military facilities? It is clearly desirable that all the assistance in instruction and demonstration which the Provincial Governments may be able to give should be canalised as far as possible. It is realised that their staffs are by no means numerous, and that they have little or no surplus to devote to a wholesale scheme of mass education of the type envisaged. The idea therefore is that help from the Provinces would be confined to training soldiers to act as instructors in military training centres in subjects mentioned in B, C and D of para 3 above. Since men from one Province are in many cases scattered over many Training Centres often located outside their own Province and it is highly desirable that Provinces should train their own men, it will not be practicable or economical for Provinces to send their experts to train military instructors at the Military Training Centres.

7. The establishment by Provinces of training centres in their own Province or the extension of existing facilities, therefore, seems necessary. Besides being economical in personnel and equipment it also has the advantage that Provinces may urgently require large increases of their own staff for the prosecution of various activities and may welcome the opportunity of instructing at their own institutions men for service under their own Government after demobilisation - e.g. stockmen, agricultural muqaddams, co-operative sub-inspectors, men trained in the work of consolidation of holdings, or anti-erosion work and men trained to lead anti-malarial squads or trained in other forms of public health activity, etc. The Army would be prepared to send groups of men to these centres for training and would in addition provide supervisory staff to attend to their discipline and administration.

8. Military instructors trained at Civil Training Centres would be men specially selected to receive the benefits of courses, each man making himself efficient in one aspect of the subject. On completion of their training they would themselves pass on their knowledge to specially selected men from the units, who would in turn act as instructors to the remainder of their unit. By using this 'monitorial' system, instruction, once the instructors are trained, would be carried out simultaneously in every unit. It is estimated that your Province would be asked to train initially approximately men.

9. If your Government favours this scheme and is prepared to co-operate it will be necessary to decide on the Centres (Civil and/or Military) where Cadre classes with civilian instructors are to be held.

Subjects to be taught at each.

Number of students each can take, and

Duration of courses.

It will also be necessary to begin to earmark instructors to put the "monitorial" system in motion. Training of instructors should begin at the earliest possible date after the signing of the armistice.

10. The cost of the training and arrangements contemplated above is not likely to be very great and it is hoped that the Provincial Government would agree to meeting it themselves, in view of the benefits likely to accrue to the Province.

11. I should be grateful for an indication of the views of the Provincial Government on the scheme here adumbrated as soon as convenient.

Dear Sir,

Your D.O .No.W.945-50/W.89-43-2 dated 15th November 1943, on the subject of Vocational Training for the Army.

The training contemplated may best be given in the Rural Welfare Centre Doddaballapur for a period of 3 months to begin with and it may be supplemented by training for another period of 3 months in the Occupational Institute in part time classes arranged for adult craftsmen. We may easily take 30 candidates for training on condition that they will all be Mysoreans.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING FOR THE ARMY.

A perusal of the note indicates that a good portion of the training of these men has to do with Agriculture, Sanitation Etc., I therefore suggest that the Director of Agriculture may be requested to give a note on the subject which may meet the requirements as set forth in the note sent by the Residency.

However there are certain items of Village Industries which may be of use to the demobilised men when they go back to their villages such as Cottage Industries making use of raw materials such as wood, iron, leather, wool, cotton, silk, fibre, clay, etc., Useful industries can be developed making use of the raw materials available in the villages. As far as Mysore is concerned, we have a number of Industrial Schools throughout the State, the Cottage Industrial Centres recently started by the Department of Industries and also the Occupational Institute in Bangalore. It should be possible to train men in these Institutions or Centres giving them intensive training for a short period in the Cottage Industries indicated above.

As regards the number of men that could be so trained, period of training, syllabus for adoption etc., these could be settled when the main principle is accepted.

Obviously the number involved will be large but the Agricultural and other occupations should take away a large proportion of such men and the Cottage Industries training could be given only to a few selected men. In all of the Centres mentioned above, if proper facilities are made available in the shape of Instructors, tools and other items about two to three hundred men may be trained in batches in a period of six months. If separate Institutions are started as in the case of the War-Technicians Scheme, but in a more simpler form nearly three to four times the number could be trained in the above occupations.

OFFICE OF THE REGISTRAR OF CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES IN MYSORE,

D. O. No. 35 Enclosure

Dated Bangalore, ...3rd.....December194 .3

Dear Sir,

Subject: Vocational Training for the Army.

With reference to your letter No.W.945-50/W 89.43.2 dated 15th November 1943 requesting to forward a report to Government regarding the facilities available in respect of the subjects pertaining to the Department of Co-operation and calling for my views as to whether any training can be undertaken in the Department, I write to inform that the Department gives a course of training to the Inspectors of Co-operative Societies and candidates for the Inspectorate in the Principles and practitde and law of Co-operation for a period of 4½ months commencing from January each year. The Mysore Co-operative Institute also conducts training classes for the benefit of the members of the committees of management (i.e. Panchayath) of societies. I think that if a more technical training is necessary, the men may be asked to undergo the training along with the Inspectors in the training class to be conducted by the Department and if a general training is required, they may with advatage undergo the training in the Mysore Co-operative Institute for a period of three months.

About six persons for the Co-operative Inspectors' training class conducted by the Department and a dozen for the Panchayathdars' training class conducted by the Institute may be arranged to be taken without difficulty. A larger number cannot be taken. With regard to the courses of study, a copy of the syllabus for the training class for Inspectors of Co-operative Societies is enclosed. In the Panchayathdars' training class class conducted by the Institute, instruction is imparted in (i) Principles and Practice of Co-operation (ii) Co-operative Law (iii) Accounts, Banking, Auditing and correspondence and filing (iv) and Elements of General Law. This training can be given additional extra cost.

OFFICE OF
The Director of

Lalbagh, Bangalore,
Date 11th December 1943.

To

The Additional Secretary to the Government of
His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore,
Bangalore.

Sir,

Subject:- VOCATIONAL TRAINING FOR THE ARMY.

Dear Sir,

With reference to d.o.No. 945/50W dated 15th November 1943 from the Chief Secretary to the Government of Mysore, forwarding - copy of Residency d.o.letter No. F 80-43/W. dated 21st October 1943 with its enclosures on the above subject and requesting for my report and views thereon as to the facilities available for training Army men in respect of the subjects pertaining to the Horticultural Department, I write to state that the post-war plan of vocational training adumberat -ed in Government of India letter No.F 3(4)MPA/43 dated 8th September 1943 is very helpful and the scheme is desirable both in the interest of the persons proposed to be trained and in the interest of the State.

The advantages of the scheme in so far as it relates to this Department are briefly stated below:-

It is seen from the Government of India letter that ~~most of~~ the Army men proposed to be trained are 70 to 80% agriculturists. When these persons return to their villages after their discharge from the Army, technical training of the kind thought of will be of value to - them in finding ready means of living or in finding a subsidiary -- occupation which in due course may turn to be their main occupation. The training is likely to befit them to live as useful and efficient citizens when they return to civil life with a better standard of living than their fellow beings.

The scheme also suits the needs of the State considering the natural conditions such as soil, rainfall etc, prevailing here ~~and~~ which are favourable for horticultural enterprise such as fruit and vegetable growing, fruit preservation, vegetable dehydration and cultivation of fodder crops and other plants of economic value. During the post-war period especially, the services of trained hands will be required in large numbers in starting these profitable industries.

Besides, such a scheme will necessarily help to bring under cultivation large areas of fertile but un-cultivated lands in different parts of the State for the production of "protective" foods, among which are vegetables and fruits, so vitally necessary for the health of the people.

The scheme also helps the establishment of a Rural -- Reconstruction Exhibition and a Demonstration Garden where samples and pictures of horticultural crops and seeds, ~~and~~ vegetables, preserved fruits such as Mango and pineapple slices, guava jelly, orange marmalade, grape juice, tomato ketchup, common plant pests and diseases, etc, can be exhibited. Bangalore is well suited for this purpose as it has already got an Officers Training School.

As to the facilities available for training, it has to be stated that the Horticultural Department can arrange to give training for 50 students in the subjects mentioned under 'C' of para 3 of the Government of India letter, with the exception of items (v) Animal Husbandry, (vi) Economic use of water and Dry farming, and (viii) Consolidation of Holdings. The Government Botanic Garden, Bangalore, the Horticultural Farm, Bangalore, the Fruit Research Station, Hessarghatta, the Vegetable Farms at Maddur and Mandya, and the Brindavan Gardens and Orchards, Krisharajasagara, serve as valuable training grounds for the training of ~~cadets only~~ candidates.

p.t.o. Ac)

The Marketing Department can arrange to impart training in principles and practice of marketing including grading of commodities and establishment of Co-operative sale Societies referring to 'B' of para 3 of the Government of India letter.

As for the requirements of ~~staff~~ establishment, it is necessary to have a small staff and contingent grant for this purpose. The Horticultural Department has limited qualified and experienced staff and the officials are already overworked. The deputation of some of the departmental officials for this work will necessitate extra staff to fill up their places. One Horticultural Instructor, one Demonstrator, two gardeners, and an Attender have been provided as whole-time workers, while some of the departmental officials are provided with the remuneration of small allowances.

If Government is pleased to sanction a sum of Rs 6,000/- as per details noted in Annexure 'B' to this letter, arrangements for training 50 candidates can be made by the department. The sum of Rs 6,000/- required by the Horticultural Department and the sum of Rs 100/- shown against the Marketing Department will have to be provided for as an additional grant, as it cannot be met out of the sanctioned grants of these departments.

A copy of the programme of training envisaged is shown in Annexure 'A' to this letter for kind information.

I may add that as seen from the Government of India letter, training is intended to be given during the period between the cessation of hostilities and demobilisation and actual discharge of the military personnel from the Army. It is necessary that immediately after the Armistice is signed, large number of trained men have to be made readily available for reconstruction work. It is therefore imperative that the scheme of training especially as regards horticulture is started as early as possible.

I am of opinion that the Government of Mysore may if they have no objection favours the scheme and co-operate with the Directorate of Welfare and Amenities, Defence Department, Government of India, on the subject of Vocational Training for the Army.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Sir,

SUBJECT:- Vocational Training for the Army

With reference to your D.O.letter No.W.945-50 W.89-43-2 dated 15th November 1943, forwarding for information a copy of Residency D.O.No.F.80-43/W dated the 21st October 1943 with enclosures on the above subject and calling for a report as to the facilities available in respect of the subjects pertaining to the Agricultural Department,etc., I write to state as follows:-

Facilities exist on the Hebbal Agricultural Farm to impart instructions in the subjects mentioned in (C)(i) of the note, as these are included in the curricula of the School except VIII the elements of the practice of growing vegetables, fruit and flowers which is a subject for which special classes are held by the Horticultural Department. A three months' intensive training on the Hebbal Farm with practical training in different sections of the Department, viz., chemical,botanical,mycological and entomological, and a week's stay at each of the principal Agricultural Farms,viz., Irwin Canal, and Babbur Farm would, I think, meet the requirements of the scheme.

All possible facilities will be extended to the batch of students to be sent for training.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING FOR THE ARMY.

My dear Vedanayagachariyar,

I am desired to refer to my demi-official letter No.F.80-43/W, dated the 21st October 1943.

2. The Government of India's intention is for the vocational training facilities provided in any State at its own expense to be available only to subjects of that State, irrespective of whether they are serving in the Indian Army or in the State Forces. Similarly Provinces would only provide for the training of their own men whether they are in the Indian Army or in the State Forces. The Central Government's vocational training facilities would however be open to all personnel of the three services irrespective of whether they are State subjects or not.

3. The Government of India observe that the benefits that States may expect from the scheme are the raising of the standard both of agricultural education and of village tradesmen by the ex-soldiers so trained, and that it, therefore, seems reasonable that the States would meet the cost of the training arrangements themselves.

4. The scheme is still under the consideration of the Government of India and the scope and details of the scheme can be settled only on receipt of replies from Provinces and States. I am therefore

to

to request that the Mysore Government's reply to my letter referred to in paragraph 1 may kindly be expedited.

Dear sir,

Vocational Training for the Army.

With reference to your D.O. No. F.80-43/W., dated 21st October 1943 on the above subject, I am desired to state that the Government of His Highness the Maharaja will be glad to co-operate in the scheme outlined in the letter of the Defence Department. The training in the principles and practice of co-operation can be arranged for by the Department of Co-operation. The subjects referred to under (c) of para 3 of the Defence Department's letter can be taught in the Agricultural School, Hebbal and the Horticultural Department, Bangalore. The training in Rural Industries can be given in the Rural Welfare Centre, Dodballapur, the Occupational Institute, Bangalore, and the Cottage Industries Centres.

A note furnishing details regarding the course is appended.

Yours sincerely,

A.E. Drake, Esq.,
Secretary to the
Hon'ble the Resident in Mysore,
Bangalore.

A. Training in the principles practice & Co-operation

The Department of Co-operation gives a course of training to the Inspectors of Co-operative Societies and candidates for the Inspectorate in the principles and practice and law of Co-operation for a period of 4½ months commencing from January each year. The Mysore Co-operative Institute also conducts training classes for the benefit of the members of the committees of management (i.e. panchayath) of societies. If a more technical training is necessary, the men may be asked to undergo the training along with the inspectors in the training class to be conducted by the Department and if a general training is required, they may with advantage undergo the training in the Mysore Co-operative Institute for a period of three months.

About six persons for the Co-operative Inspectors' training class conducted by the Department and a dozen for the Panchayathdars' Training Class conducted by the Institute may be arranged to be taken without difficulty. A larger number cannot be taken. With regard to the courses of study, a copy of the syllabus for the training class for Inspectors of Co-operative Societies is enclosed. In the Panchayathdars' Training Class conducted by the institute, instruction is imparted in (1) Principles and practice of co-operation (ii) Co-operative Law, (iii) Accounts, Banking, Auditing and correspondence and filing (iv) and elements of general law. A copy of syllabus is attached.

(7) Training in Agriculture

Facilities exist on the Hebbal Agricultural Farm to impart instruction in the subjects mentioned in (C) of the note as these are included in the curricula of the school except VIII the elements of the practice of growing vegetables, fruit and flowers (vii) which is a subject for which special classes are held by the Horticultural Department. A three months' intensive training on the Hebbal Farm with practical training in different sections of the department, (viz., chemical, botanical, mycological and entomological) and a week's stay at each of the principal Agricultural Farms, viz., Irwin Canal, and Babbur Farm, ~~would, I think~~ is likely to, meet the requirements of the scheme.

The Horticultural Department can arrange to give ~~give~~ training ~~for 50 students~~ in the subjects mentioned under (C) of para 3 of the Government of India letter, with the exception of items (v) Animal Husbandry, (vi) Economic use of water and dry farming, and (viii) Consolidation of holdings. The Government Botanic Garden, Bangalore, the Horticultural Farm, Bangalore, the Fruit Research Station, Hessarghatta, the Vegetable Farms at Maddur and Mandya, and the Brindavan Gardens and Orchards, Krishnarajasagara, serve as valuable training grounds for the training of candidates.

The Marketing Department can arrange to impart training in principles and practice of marketing including grading of commodities and establishment of Co-operative Sale Societies referring to (B) of para 3 of the Government of India letter. A copy of the Co-operative is attached

c/ training in Industries

3. The training can be given in The Rural Welfare Centre, Dodballapur, for a period of 3 months supplemented by another period of 3 months training in the Occupational Institute in part time classes arranged for adult craftsmen.

There are certain items of Village Industries which may be of use to the demobilised men when they go back to their villages, such as Cottage Industries, making use of raw materials such as wood, iron, leather, wool, cotton, silk, fibre, clay, etc. Useful industries can be developed making use of the raw materials available in the villages. As far as Mysore is concerned, we have a number of Industrial Schools throughout the State, the Cottage Industries Centres recently started by the Department of Industries and also the Occupational Institute in Bangalore. It should be possible to train men in these institutions or Centres giving them intensive training for a short period in the Cottage Industries indicated above.

As regards the number of men that could be so trained, period of training, syllabus for adoption, etc., these could be settled when the main principle is accepted.

Obviously the number involved will be large but the Agricultural and other occupations should take away a large proportion of such men and the Cottage Industries training could be given only to a few selected men. In all of the centres mentioned above, if proper facilities are made available in the shape of Instructors, tools and other items about two to three hundred men may be trained in batches in a period of six months. If separate institutions are started as in the case of the War Technicians Scheme, but in a simpler form nearly three to four times the number could be trained in the above occupations.

Occupational Institute, Bangalore, and the Cottage Industries Centres.

A note furnishing details regarding the courses is appended.

Yours sincerely,

Sd: V. Vedavyasacharya.

Dear Sir,

In reply to your d.o.No.W.2217-20 dated 15th March 1944 enquiring as to the approximate number of candidates that can be taken for training with the existing facilities in the departmen I write to state that due to heavy increase in the volume of - work on account of several developmental works, schemes, reports and enquiries received from the Military Department, Government of India, etc, the departmental staff both technical and --- executive are already very much over-worked. The Superintendent, Government Gardens, has been recently appointed as Special - Officer for increasing the production of vegetables and this place has not been filled up by a suitable hand. All the routine works have devolved upon me and it is felt very difficult to - cope up with them. It is not therefore possible to find - facilities for the training of the Army men.

To

The Chief Secretary to Government of
His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore,
Bangalore.

Sir,

Subject:- Vocational Training for the Army.

With reference to your D.O.No. W.2217-20 dated 15th March 1944 regarding Vocational training for the Army, I have the honour to state that it is possible to train 30 candidates with the existing facilities. The 30 candidates may be sent in one batch. Since the Agricultural School and the Farm will also be working during the period under training, the candidates will have to make their own arrangements for lodging and boarding. The next session of the school will start in the first week of June 1944.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your most obedient servant,

Director of Agriculture.

Dear Sir,

With reference to your letter No. 2217 dated 15th March 1944 and subsequent reminder dated 29-4-1944, I wish to state that about 50 to 75 men could be given vocational training in the various Industrial Schools and Cottage Industries Centres under the control of this Department and about 100 to 125 men may perhaps be given training in the Agricultural Schools and Farms under the control of the Agricultural Department. The question of expenditure to be incurred in this connection may be taken up separately after the proposal is approved by Government.

Yours sincerely,
